Editorial

The time has come for another graduation, another annual, and another editorial. In most instances graduation for the average high school senior is a time of greater or lesser sentimental and emotional stress; a time when by word of mouth or flourish of the pen, one hears such fancy phrases as "We are embarking on the ship of destiny", or "We stand on the threshold of the future". Flowery speech and elaborate oratorical metaphors of this kind have their place, but graduation from high school also has its more serious aspect, and perhaps never before have high school graduates had more difficult problems to solve or greater tasks to perform.

We have certainly enjoyed the comradeship of high school; the memories of the dances, basket-ball and football games, class plays, and all the other social and athletic functions will always be pleasant and lasting. We can be thankful that the United States has such a fine educational system, and we should do our best to make it more efficient and raise its standards to even greater heights for the benefit of generations to come. But even more important and serious is the fact that with us lies the preservation of our nation, our democratic way of life, and our social and economic system as it is today. That is why I consider it a pleasure and an honor to write this article. I feel that I will be able at the present time to deliver to you a message with a purpose through this channel.

Democracy and freedom are not gifts or heritages that automatically become and remain ours merely because we are descendents of our courageous forefathers who gave their lives and made numerous sacrifices to attain and secure this way of life. Whether in peace or in war we must wage a daily battle to preserve the ideals of this nation and secure them for ourselves and our children. We can accomplish this task by intelligent reading and thinking, and by continuing to educate ourselves to our dying day. We must not feel that our period of learning is now over. Great scholars have told us that after we have been awarded our high school diploma or our college degree, our education has only begun.

Hatred, prejudice, and bigotry thrive among the uneducated. They are excellent spawning grounds for the seeds of Communism and other forms of government alien to our democratic ideals. You will find that a truly educated man or woman is not chained in his daily-life decisions or mode of living by racial or religious bigotry. The truly educated person is usually sympathetic and can appreciate the views and beliefs of all groups. Therefore, it is very essential that we continue to educate ourselves in order to become leaders in our community, state, and nation, and thus preserve our heritage of freedom. To educate ourselves is most necessary, but it may be quite possible that we will be confronted with the opportunity of making even greater sacrifices to preserve our American beliefs. If this be the case, I am sure that in you, my classmates, courage will not be found wanting. It will be up to us and all high school graduates of this great nation to keep the torch of learning brightly burning, and to preserve and defend, and perhaps rebuild our way of life.

Class "B" Championship Marching Band

Music Department

Under the direction of Mr. Granere, the music department was a very active organization in Wahoo High School. This organization consisted of band, orchestra, chorus, girls and boys glee clubs and pep band.

The orchestra composed of forty-eight members presented a concert with the band on January 22. This group which had increased greatly in size was composed of both grade school and high school students. The orchestra attended the spring music contest held in Fremont along with the choral groups and the band. The orchestra also played for the junior and senior class plays.

The following were elected officers for the year by the orchestra: student director, Ardelle Hengen; secretary, Suzanne Schulte; librarian, Merle Meyers; and assistant librarian, Irene Roberts. Irene Roberts was concert mistress for the second year.

The girls glee club, composed of fifty members, participated in a concert given January 29. This group was accompanied by Suzanne Schulte. Officers chosen were: student director, Patricia Hanson; secretary, Jacqueline Carlson; librarian, Georgia Rae Halliburton; assistant librarian, Janet Kokjer.

The boys glee club presented its concert on January 29. This group composed of forty-five members was accompanied by Nelda Vogler. Jack Stewart was elected student director; Richard Worrall, secretary; Ronald Ohnoutka, librarian; Donald Morin, assistant librarian.

The chorus, a mixed group composed of fifty-four members selected from the two glee clubs completed the all-vocal concert on January 29. Accompanied by Ferne Epperson, Irene Roberts acted as student director; Suzanne Schulte, secretary; Richard Worrall librarian; Jean Martinson, assistant librarian.

The pep band composed of fifteen enthusiastic members and under the capable direction of Ferne Epperson, stimulated the basketball fans at home games and pep rallies. Spending many hours rehearsing their lively numbers was a delightful chore for the members. The pep band also traveled to some out-of-town games with the pep club to encourage the team to bring home a victory.

The band marched at the American Legion Convention in July and in August made an enjoyable 190 trip to the rodeo at Burwell where they paraded and played for the events. The band also participated in the program on the opening day at the Nebraska State Fair. In October the band defended their Class B championship title successfully at the Ak-Sar-Ben marching contest when they eliminated Missouri Valley, Iowa. Individual medals, a banner and $100 were received plus transportation costs. For this achievement the band was honored when the First National Bank entertained the members at the Ice Cycles on January 2. Thoroughly enjoying the performance, an extra thrill was added when the band's presence was announced and the spotlight centered on them. The band also performed at home football games between halves and on November 12, paraded for the Friendship Train's arrival in Fremont. A concert was presented with the orchestra on January 22.

The music contest which was held in Fremont April 16, proved to be successful. Band, orchestra, boys glee and girls glee clubs were rated superior and out of 18 solos and small groups, 7 were rated superior and 11 were rated excellent.

Officers of the band were: student director, Charles Burmeister; band manager, Patricia Hanson; secretary, Jean Caha; librarian, Helen Pokorny; assistant librarian, Patricia Gleeson; uniform custodian, Ronald Ohnoutka; assistant uniform custodian, Jacqueline Carlson.

The pep club is composed of the customary fifty girls. At the opening of the school year the active members elected, by popular vote, a sponsor and enough new members to fill the vacancies left by the graduating girls. The purpose of the organization is to incite school spirit for the football and basketball games. The girls donned new uniforms this year, which they were required to wear to the games and to school on the days of the games. These uniforms consist of gold sweaters, blue skirts, blue and gold "beanies" and the traditional warrior emblem.

A skit committee was appointed by the vice-president to prepare skits which were presented to the student body before each home game. The outstanding rally this year was a snake dance through the business section of Wahoo held the evening before the Seward game. At each intersection a circle was formed and yells were given. The football captain was crowned "chief" of Wahoo High.

The officers for 1947-48 were: president, Lee Jackson; vice-president, Jean Jackson; secretary-treasurer, Janet Kokjer; sponsor, Mrs. Worrall.
